Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 18-20, 27-30 and 37 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Pub No US 2002/0050813 issued to Yamamoto (hereafter Yamamoto).

Claims 18 and 28:

Yamamoto discloses a power tester apparatus for testing an electronic device, the device configured to operate using a constant power supply voltage, the apparatus comprising:

- a power source supplying the constant power supply voltage [Vcc, Fig 2]
- a connector coupled to the power source, the connector adapted to connect the constant power supply voltage to a power supply input on the electronic device [Fig 1, 7];
- circuitry configured to introduce disturbances into the constant power supply voltage applied to the electronic device, a disturbance configured to simulate an unexpected change in a nominal power supply voltage, wherein the disturbances introduced into the constant power supply voltage applied to the electronic device are controllable [Fig 1, 15].

Claims 19 and 29:

Art Unit: 2171

Yamamoto discloses wherein the disturbance is a rising pulse having a maximum voltage which is controllable [Fig 2].

Claims 20 and 30:

Yamamoto discloses wherein the disturbance is a low-going pulse having a minimum voltage being less than the voltage [Fig 2].

Claim 27:

Yamamoto discloses wherein the disturbance comprises a voltage sequence applied during powering up of the electronic device [abstract].

Claim 37:

Yamamoto discloses providing a 0 VDC voltage for a preselected duration of time after the voltage is coupled to the connector [Fig 2].

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 21 and 31 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yamamoto in view of US Pat No 5,353,254 issued to Sakamoto (hereafter Sakamoto).

Claims 21 and 31:

Yamamoto discloses the elements of claims 18 and 28 as noted above.

Art Unit: 2171

Yamamoto fails to disclose wherein the constant power supply voltage is selected from the group of voltages consisting of +5 VDC and +12 VDC.

Sakamoto discloses as admitted prior art wherein the constant power supply voltage is selected from the group of voltages consisting of +5 VDC and +12 VDC [col 1, lines 13-20].

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Yamamoto to include wherein the constant power supply voltage is selected from the group of voltages consisting of +5 VDC and +12 VDC as taught by Sakamoto.

The ordinarily skilled artisan would have been motivated to modify Yamamoto per the above for the purpose of selecting a conventional power source [col 1, lines 13-20].

Claims 22, 23, 32 and 33 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yamamoto in view of US Pat No 5,949,671 issued to Lee et al (hereafter Lee '671).

Claims 22 and 32:

Yamamoto discloses the elements of claims 18 and 28 as noted above,

Yamamoto fails to disclose further comprising an additional power source supplying an additional voltage wherein the additional power source is adapted to connect the additional voltage to an additional connector.

Lee '671 discloses a dual voltage power supply [Fig 1, 130, 140].

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Yamamoto to include a dual voltage power supply as taught by Lee '671.

Art Unit: 2171

The ordinarily skilled artisan would have been motivated to modify Yamamoto per the above for the purpose of providing a voltage supply suitable for powering the electronic device at the design voltage of the electronic device.

Furthermore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the combination of Yamamoto and Lee '671 to include further comprising an additional power source supplying an additional voltage wherein the additional power source is adapted to connect the additional voltage to an additional connector.

The ordinarily skilled artisan would have been motivated to modify the combination of Yamamoto and Lee '671 per the above for the purpose of physically providing a first voltage to a first device under test and a second voltage to a second device under test.

Claims 23 and 33:

The combination of Yamamoto and Lee '671 disclose the elements of claims 18, 22, 28 and 32 as noted above.

Lee '671 discloses 24 VDC [col 1, lines 55-60].

Claims 24-26 and 34-36 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yamamoto in view of US Pat No 4,764,652 issued to Lee et al (hereafter Lee '652).

Claims 24 and 34:

Yamamoto discloses the elements of claims 18 and 28 as noted above.

Yamamoto fails to disclose a manually operated user interface used to control the disturbances.

Art Unit: 2171

Lee '652 discloses a manually operated user interface used to control the disturbances [Fig 3, 54].

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Yamamoto to include a manually operated user interface used to control the disturbances as taught by Lee '652.

The ordinarily skilled artisan would have been motivated to modify Yamamoto per the above for the purpose of controlling the output to the work coil in order to control temperature of the cooker [Fig 1].

Claims 25, 26, 35 and 36

Yamamoto discloses the elements of claims 18 and 28 as noted above.

Yamamoto fails to disclose wherein the disturbance is at least one pulse having a duration and a magnitude which are controllable.

Lee '652 discloses wherein the disturbance is at least one pulse having a duration and a magnitude which are controllable [abstract].

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Yamamoto to include wherein the disturbance is at least one pulse having a duration and a magnitude which are controllable as taught by Lee '652

The ordinarily skilled artisan would have been motivated to modify Yamamoto per the above for the purpose of controlling the output to the work coil in order to control temperature of the cooker [Fig 1].
